

Fahari F1

Fahari F1 is an early maturing Jubilee type of watermelon. It produces large fruit with sweet tasting red flesh. The fruits have a thin but tough rind that offers very good shelf life and hence good keeping quality to be transported to long distances. It has a short cycle that enables the grower to save on production costs and also reach the market right on time. It also has sufficient plant cover hence protecting its fruit from heat damage. The variety produces at least two to three uniform fruit per plant. This means the grower has more marketable yield and the marketer is able to harvest all the fruits at the same time.
